

McGill-Queen's University Press
cordially invites you to a launch for
LIBERATING TEMPORARINESS?
Migration, Work, and Citizenship
in an Age of Insecurity

Liberating Temporariness? explores the institutionalization of temporariness as a condition of life for a growing number of people worldwide -- it considers growing complexities surrounding the legal status of migrants and refugees, deepening precariousness in employment, and mounting limitations on social rights. The contributors chart the Canadian experience as contrasted with developments in Europe, Australia, and the United States, and offer alternative possibilities for security and liberation.

CONTRIBUTORS: Yasmeen Abu-Laban, University of Alberta; Abigail B. Bakan, OISE; Melisa Breton, York University; Mike Larsen, Kwantlen Polytechnic University; Christina Gabriel, Carleton University; Tesseltje de Lange, Universiteit van Amsterdam; Sarah van Walsum, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam; Emily Gilbert, University of Toronto; Parvati Raghuram, The Open University; Eve Haque, York University; Luin Goldring, York University; John Shields, Ryerson; Marianne Marchand, Universidad de las Américas, Puebla; Deepa Rajkumar, Independent Researcher

Please join the editors,
Leah F. Vosko, Valerie Preston, and Robert Latham

September 18, 2014
5:00-7:00 p.m.

Nexus Lounge, 12th Floor, South Side
OISE – University of Toronto
252 Bloor Street West, Toronto

REMARKS BY:

Erika Gates-Gasse - Ontario Council of Agencies Serving Immigrants
Alison Mountz - Wilfrid Laurier University
Chris Ramsaroop - Justicia for Migrant Workers (J4MW)

CO-SPONSORED BY:

- Critical Scholarship and Social Transformation Program, York University
- Department of Social Justice Education, OISE
- Canada Research Chair in the Political Economy of Gender & Work, York University
- Global Labour Research Centre, York University